

DISTRICT POLICE OKARA

ANNUAL POLICING PLAN
YEAR 2015-2016

INTRODUCTION OF OKARA DISTRICT

District Okara came into being on 1.7.1982 on detachment from Division of District Sahiwal, formerly known as Montgomery. It included the areas of Okara and Depalpur, which were previously two Tehsils of District Sahiwal.

The history of this area is that it been an abode of certain wild pastoral tribes which appear to have occupied this land from the time immemorial, maintaining independence from the successive rulers of northern India, and even noted for their lawless turbulence and criminal bent. Their history goes back, probably as far as the time of Alexander. Cattle lifting and abduction of women have always been a main crime and a way of life for the old inhabitants. During and after the British Rule when the main irrigation systems were established, new settlements on large scale took place. The settlers included Rajputs (Raos) and Arains. These two communities are now playing an important social and political role in the society in addition to the Syed of Shergarh and Hujra, who contributed towards the propagation of Islam in the area.

Depalpur, Haveli, Sher-garh, Satghrah and Gogera are historical places of this district. In 1524, Moghal Emperor Babar, having conquered Lahore marched on Depalpur and took it by storm. The area attached to Depalpur was given under the control of Sultan Alla-ud-Din Lodhi who had been an unsuccessful competitor for the throne of Delhi. Babar had to fall back owing to defection of Daulat Khan who drove Alla-ud-Din out of country. In 1526, Babar defeated Ibrahim Lodhi at the battle of Panipat and this area came into Babar's domain. On his death Humayun gave it to his brother Mirza Kamran who held it till the successful revolt of Sher Shah Suri in 1540.

Sher Shah built a fort at Shergarh to defend this area. On the return of Hamayun this area again fell under the Moghal rule. After the end of Moghal regime, Sikh and English rulers dominated this area.
