It has further been provided in the said article that the plan would be got approved from the District Public Safety Commission but presently the District Public Safety Commission is not operating in this District.

In fact, lack of industries has resulted the economic conditions in a terrible mess. It has also been kept in mind while formulating polices for the year that the District Police Pakpattan has also to play its role positively, in administration of criminal justice.

INTRODUCTION OF DISTRICT PAKPATTAN.

Pakpattan come into existence much before the invasion of the Alexander the Great, Sultan Mehmood Ghaznavi and Amir Taimur. The famous traveler/explorer Ibn-e-Batuta crossed the river Satluj at the point where presently Pakpattan is situated. Since the river used to flow closer to the town, called at that time Ajudhan, Akbar-e-Azam gave it the name of Pakpattan, due to the sanctity of Shrine of the famous mystic saint Hazrat Baba Farid-ud-Din Masood Ganj Shakar (R.A). Pakpattan was elevated to the status of district in year 1990, when it was carved out from district Sahiwal. Initially, it comprised of one Sub-Division but in January 1995, Sub-Division Arifwala was also made a part of this district. The district headquarters Pakpattan is situated on the main road, connecting Multan with Kasur. Length of the Multan Kasur road (old Dehli road) within the district is 66 Km, from Bunga Hayat in the East to Rasool Pur in the West. Other main traffic route is Sahiwal to Bahawalnagar via Arifwala. There is also one main canal namely Pakpattan Canal which passes through both of the Sub-Divisions, with length, within the district, 45.33 km. The district also falls on Railways track, from Kasur to Lodhran. The length of Railways track, within the district is 47.82 Km. LAST WORDS

By the grace of Almighty “Allah” District Police Pakpattan is performing its duties according to law and is able enough to control law and order alongwith prevention and detection of crime, despite limited financial, technological and human resources. It is also added in this regard that the perfunctory exercise of drawing out plans, chalking out strategies and making vision in various areas, have been continued since establishment of the country but unfortunately, we often failed to achieve our targets and commitments, in real sense of the word. Therefore, vital in this regard is to put all the plans and strategies in practice to have positive development in our society. Inshallah, the District Police Pakpattan is ready to face any difficulty in discharge of its duties and it has now, come with more devotion/dedication and determination to drain its energies, to achieve the objectives/targets laid down in the policing plan. At the same time, it is also realized that the district police cannot take even a single step without cooperation of the Provincial Governments and the departmental high ups. It is hoped that all these will certainly stand with us, in fulfillment of our tasks. The district police will, at the same time play its role in effective administration of criminal justice and improving image of Police Department, please.
