ANNUAL POLICING PLAN

DISTRICT SHEIKHUPURA.

YEAR 2015-16

INTRODUCTION OF SHEIKHUPURA DISTRICT

The history of Sheikhpura goes back to 100 BC. Historical research has established the fact that Sangla or Sakala was capital of the Punjab once. Alexander the Great of Macedonia (locally known as Sikandar-e-Azam) fought one of his most horrible battles of his life. Its name was spoken of firstly on the pages of Tuzk-e-Jahangiri as “Jahangirpura,” after the name of Prince Salim Noor-ud-Din Muhammad Jahangir.

Mughal Emperor, Noor-ud-Din Muhammad Jahangir in 1607 laid the foundation stone of historical Qila Sheikhpura. The father of Jahangir, Emperor Jalal-ud-Din Mohammad Akbar used to call him Sheikhu (a nick name). During Sikh rule, new city was named Singhpuria, previously known as Jahangirabad.

During the reign of Emperor Jahangir (1605 to 1672), Sheikhpura had the status of Royal hunting ground. In Tuzke-Jahangiri, Jahangir wrote during the events in 1607.

“On the day of Tuesday, I reside in Jahangirpura, my hunting ground. According to my order, a Minar and a grave for my deer, Mansraj, were constructed here.”

Mughal Emperor Jahangir granted the estate of Sheikhpura to Syed Usman, father of Shah Bilal, a religious preceptor of the line of Qadiriyyah.

Over the whole district, period between decline of the Mughal Empire after the death of Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb and rise of the Sikh confederacies was one of utter confusion and anarchy. The successive shocks of invasion from the Northwest and the devastation caused again and again by the invading armies of Nadir Shah.

Nadir Shah and Ahmad Shah Abdali (1724-1773) almost ruined the prosperity of the tract. After the death of Aurangzeb, Muslim power was broken by the Sikhs who ruled through various small to medium sized groups. Nadir Shah and Ahmad Shah Abdali led raids that further weakened the local Muslim rule. Several raids were made by the Bhangi Sardars, a Sikh community. Finally around 1780, Ranjit Singh, a Sikh ruler defeated the grandson of Ahmad Shah Abdali and later captured this district. The Sikhs were defeated by the British around 1850 and it stayed under British rule until independence in 1947.

In 1851, Sheikhpura Tehsil became a part of Gujranwala District. The Artimapal Secretary, Chief Commissioner Lahore wrote a letter to the Department of Lahore but it was never done.

As a satellite town of Lahore, Sheikhpura has developed an industrial base. According to the Census of Manufacturing Industries of 1987-1988, the value-added generated in large-scale industries was higher in Sheikhpura than in Lahore. The GRP of the city for the year 1993 has been estimated as Rs. 6.260 million, that constitutes about 32% of the district's GRP. The industrial sector contributes 68% of the GRP and 45% of the total employment. The total number of establishments in the city has been estimated to be between 11.500 and 12.000 for 1993.

Sheikhpura is bounded by 6 other districts of the Punjab namely: Lahore, Nankana Sahib, Narowal, Hafizabad, Sialkot and Gujranwala. To the East, the international border of India connecting District Amritsar.

The District has extreme climate and the summer season starts from April and continues till October. During the summer season, temperature ranges from 30 to 48 degrees Celsius. The winter season starts from November and continues till March. December and January are the coldest months with a mean minimum temperature of about 3-5 degrees Celsius.

The dust storms occur occasionally during the hot season, during June, July and August. Rainy weather alternates with oppressive weather. The rainfall is 500 mm per annum. The mean minimum and maximum humidity during winter is 37% and 84% respectively.

Nankana was separated and made a new 35th district of the Punjab on 1st July 2005. Administratively district has been divided into 5 police circles and these circles are further divided into 16 police stations.
